Keynotes and General Sessions

Eisenhower Leadership Talks: Two versions

Eisenhower on Enlightened Leadership

Mr. Boring. Those old enough to remember Eisenhower probably remember him as Mr. Boring. As a general, he was not the best tactician. As a speaker, he was not the most dynamic personality. Yet this simple man from Kansas somehow led a nation, with only tiny army, and reeling from defeat, to victory over the world's most powerful military. Ike rose from Lieutenant Colonel to Five Star General in just 3½ years. How did he do this? By LEARNING to be a LEADER. No, he was not Mr. Boring, he was actually Mr. Amazing. His subtle and effective leadership methods are easy to learn, easy to emulate and as effective in the business world today as they were in the War Rooms of World War II. From this amazing man, you can learn practical lessons of Enlightened Leadership.

Enlightened Leadership from Ike to LeBron

What a duo, right? Two men from decades apart who had to learn how to lead, and who have proven high integrity leadership is learnable. Ike Eisenhower was known as Mr. Boring and LeBron as Mr. Basketball. Both men came from humble beginnings, built on their key strengths, and learned to lead an organization to great success. In this inspiring session, Tim shows you how anyone can learn to lead effectively, whether in the War Room, the Locker Room, the Board Room or the Lunch Room. These are real-world leadership strategies anyone can use to achieve extraordinary results. Note: This version is aimed at a younger demographic who may not relate to Ike alone, but will connect to a millennial like LeBron.

Status Quo Won't Work: Bridging the Branch / Digital Divide

Where is the world of banking headed? To greater and greater convenience for the customer. Mobile apps, digital shopping and marketing, and immediate response are now thrown on top of branches and contact centers. While delivery systems and consumer demand seem limitless, your budget isn't. So what do you do? This insightful session will help you think through your situation strategically. What can we do to meet existing members' and future consumers' needs? How do we, with our limited resources and legacy systems, thrive where the world of banking is headed?

Excellence in Your Credit Union

Good isn't good enough. Your credit union must be Excellence in something. But in what? If you don't figure this out, you will retain your long-time loyal members, but you may not be able to attract or retain new members. We will look at 7 Principles that help you achieve excellence; such as building a culture of highly satisfied and engaged employees; a culture that embraces change; a culture of accountability and more. These 7 Principles can help you move from Good to Excellent.

Mattering to Millennials by Defining Your Purpose

We have entered "the era of the purpose-based company". Deloitte Consulting says "Purpose, the meaningful impact beyond financial performance, is becoming the new normal...a business imperative." 89% of Millennials say that Purpose matters where they work and where they shop. McCleod consulting says "that the salespeople who sell with noble purpose, who truly want to improve their customer's lives, consistently outsell salespeople who are focused on sales targets and quotas." Purpose is no longer that 'squishy' topic that comes up every now and then. It is a KEY differentiator in the Millennial marketplace. What is your credit union's Purpose? Ignore it and all that sets you apart is price or convenience...and that's a tough battle to win in this highly competitive world. Uncover it and you attract motivated, passionate Directors, employees and new members who share your purpose. Know your Purpose: Build Your Difference!

Doorways to Your Credit Union's Success

In this inspirational talk, Tim uses doorways as a metaphor. Doorways that attract you. Doorways that Block you. Doorways that confound you and doorways that repel you. The question is, what are the doorways your credit union needs to find and open? The coming years will be a challenge for many credit unions. Market, technology and regulatory changes will force many credit unions to re-evaluate their place in the marketplace. Each of these challenges is also a key opportunity...a doorway. Tim, using his own art as images, will help you see ways to change thinking, overcome internal roadblocks and identify systematic obstacles that are holding back your credit union and help you see beyond the cloud of limitations you perceive in front of you.

Board and Management Sessions

Seven Simple Steps to Becoming a Strategic Board

Board's do two useful things. 1). Ensure the credit union plans strategically and 2) Hire a competent CEO. Sounds so simple. But it can be quite a task. Partly because too many directors don't fully grasp what it means to be a Strategic Board. This session will provide the Seven Simple Steps to Becoming a Strategic Board. This will help the Board see how they guide the success of the credit union without getting in the way. And how they monitor the success without overwhelming management with requests for reports. When you leave this session, you will be ready to make your Board a Strategic Board.

Understanding Successful Credit Union Business Models

An exceptionally useful course to understand how to make your credit union stand out

As credit unions have evolved, Peer comparisons become more and more irrelevant. Why? Because credit union evolution is leading to the development of many credit union business models. What is a business model? It is the unique way your credit union earns and spends money; the unique way your credit union provides delivery systems to attract and serve members; the unique way you position yourself in the market place to attract business and grow. Every credit union has a business model, most of us just don't know what it is. This session will discuss what a credit union business model is, what current business models exist, which business models appear to be successful at the moment and where business models may go in the next ten years.

Cracking the Code: Financial Literacy for Board and Staff

How's your credit union doing? No. Really. How's your credit union doing? Directors and staff need to know, before any auditor or regulator, how their credit union is doing. Financial Statements and Important Ratios are like a code. This fast, interesting and sometimes funny class helps everyone better understand how their credit union is doing. We will look at the best ratios every CU should have on their dashboard. We will make sure you know what Capital is, where it comes from and how much you probably need. We will look at a Spread Analysis so you can see how your CU is making its profit and whether it is improving or declining and why. I know exciting stuff, isn't it? When you leave here, you will be much better able to know how your credit union is doing.

What All Directors Need to Know About Financial Statements

How's your credit union doing? No, really, how is your credit union doing? As a board member, you have an obligation to know and understand how your credit union is doing...financially. The environment has become more demanding. It is no longer enough to come to meetings and trust that someone else on the Board understands your financial statements and ratios; or that if something is amiss, the CEO will let you know. According to NCUA Reg. 701.4, each Director, regardless of background, has an obligation to understand the financial condition of their credit union. Newly elected Directors have six months after election to become financially literate. This course will cover key concepts to help new and experienced directors better understand their credit union's financial condition.

Building a Better Board

How does your Board function? Or maybe a better question: “Does your Board function?” In the words of Board expert Richard Chait, “Effective governance by a Board is a relatively rare and unnatural act.” An effective Board is very difficult to establish and sometimes more difficult to maintain. So, what can you do to Build a Better Board? This course will talk about ways to focus the Board on Governance and discuss what this means as compared to Management. It will look at the planning process, reporting systems and meetings to help you identify ways to focus your Board on the things that will have the greatest impact for the members, allow you to stay out of management’s way, and have better insight to what is being accomplished by management.

Board Governance Essentials: Becoming a Better Board Member...Becoming a Better Board

A Board member’s duties can seem overwhelming and far reaching. This course illumines the fundamental duties of a Board and the best ways to discharge them. It will cover functions that Boards often become involved in that have little benefit, or a negative impact on the credit union, and how to focus on those things that will be the most beneficial. We will also cover ideas on what very effective Boards do to make the best use of their time and guide their credit union to become the best for the membership.

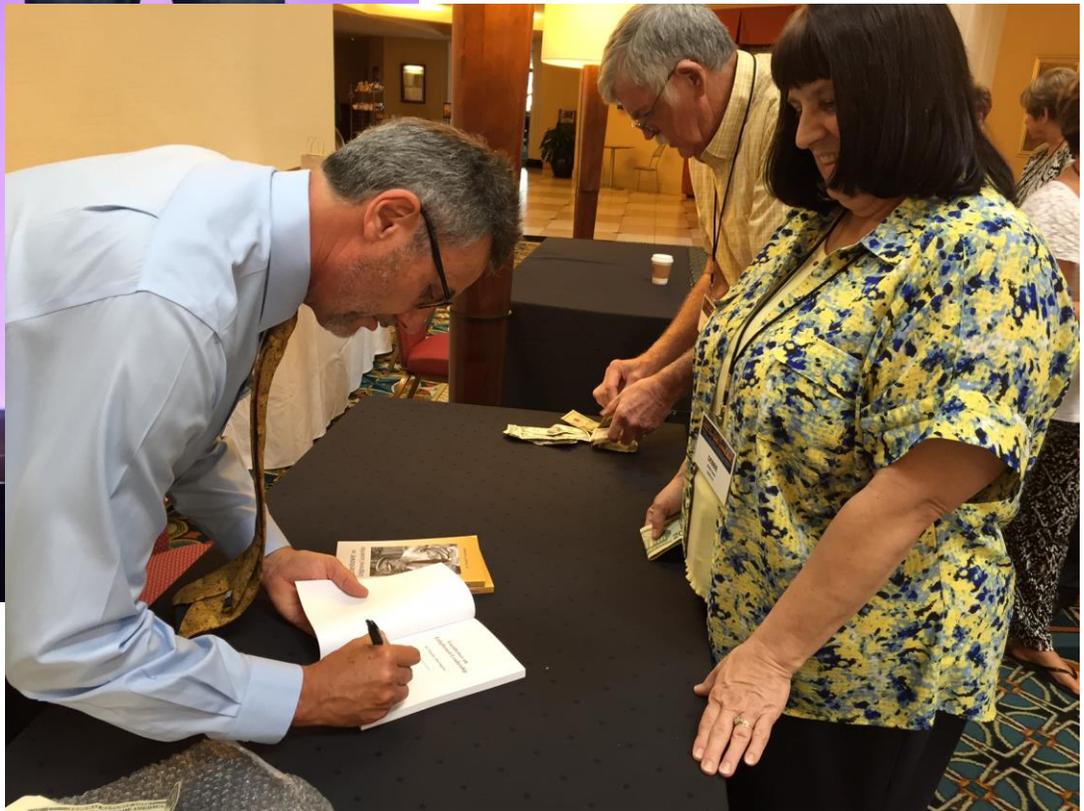

Supervisory Committee Sessions

The Supervisory Committee of the 21st Century

In the old days, Supervisory Committees reviewed loan files, performed cash counts and confirmed closed accounts. Oh boy, have times changed. The modern Supervisory Committee must understand the myriad risks facing the credit union and understand if proper controls are in place. The modern Supervisory Committee must know how to interact with the outside audit firm on a professional basis and glean everything it can from this key ally in the audit process. The modern Supervisory Committee must learn how to guide, supervise and evaluate both the internal audit department and the external auditors. The role of the Committee has changed dramatically. If the Committee really wants to do its job well and be a true, professional partner in the protection of the credit union, it must understand its role in the Changing Credit Union Environment.

Fraud, How to Spot it, How to Stop it (also Easy and Effective Audit Activities You Can Do)

Fraud of all types has been increasing rapidly in credit unions. Fraud is coming from both internal and external sources. By utilization of proper internal controls, a credit union forms the first line of defense against fraud. This session assists you in becoming familiar with areas where fraud occurs and discusses controls that can help in the prevention of fraud. Handouts include a list of areas within the credit union where fraud commonly occurs and suggestions on controls that should be in place to prevent it.
